This second webinar in a two-part webinar series on mass shootings will bring together a panel of renowned subject matter experts who will speak about characteristics of mass shootings over past decades, the psycho-social background of mass shooters, and the reasons behind school shootings. The group will draw upon the extensive datasets that its members have produced on mass public shootings under three separate NIJ funded research projects:

1. Understanding the Causes of School Violence Using Open Source Data,
2. A Comprehensive Assessment of Deadly Mass Shootings, 1980-2018, and

3. Mass Shooter Database: A multi-level, multi-method investigation of the psycho-social life histories of mass shooters.

A follow-up discussion will center on implications the findings have for the criminal justice system and on prevention.

The webinar will be held Wednesday, November 18 from, 3:00-4:30 pm ET. Register to attend, and/or get notified when the transcript and recording are available.
