

Workshop: Policing from an (inter)national perspective

March 29, 2021

University of Münster / Germany

On March 29, 2021, international scientists will give an insight into their research on the subject of plural policing.

The topics which will be discussed include:

plural policing in Germany's neighboring countries and civic policing as well as public vs. commercial policing in order to contrast them with the German perspective.

A detailed overview of the event program can be found here.

We look forward to welcoming the following guests:

- Prof.dr.ir. Jan Terpstra (Radboud University, Nijmegen, Netherlands),
- Seth Stoughton (University of South Carolina, USA),
- Dr. Ronald van Steden (Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam and Netherlands Institute for the Study of Crime and Law Enforcement, Netherlands),
- Prof. Dr. Gabriele Jacobs (Erasmus University College, Netherlands), Dr. Jens Bergmann (Polizeiakademie Niedersachsen, Germany).

Given the current circumstances, the event takes place in a virtual form via Zoom. It is aimed at all interested scientists and practitioners who would like to get a comprehensive insight into international plural policing.

We look forward to seeing you at the workshop.

When: Virtually via Zoom on Monday, March 29 2021, 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. (European Time).

Interested? Then click here for the event program!

Registration for the workshop: no later than March 22, 2021 via email:

plusi[at]uni-muenster.de